

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 30.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

January 16, 1901.

POPULATION OF MINNESOTA BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Minnesota by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Minnesota was organized as a territory March 3, 1849, and admitted as a state May 11, 1858. Table 1 shows the population of Minnesota at each census from 1850 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF MINNESOTA: 1850 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	1,751,894	449,568	34.5
1890	1,301,826	521,053	66.7
1880	780,773	341,037	77.6
1870	439,706	267,683	155.6
1860	172,023	165,946	2,730.7
1850	6,077

The population of the state in 1900 is 1,751,894 as compared with a population in 1890 of 1,301,826, showing an increase since 1890 of 449,568, or 34.5 per cent. A part of this increase is due to the fact that there were 8,208 Indians and 249 other persons, or a total of 8,457 persons, on Indian reservations, etc., in Minnesota, who were specially enumerated in 1890 under the provisions of the census act, but were not included in the general population of the state at that census. The increase of 34.5 per cent, though materially less than that of earlier decades, represents in fact a large accession to the population of a state which has been distinguished for its rapid growth throughout its brief history. Attention is particularly arrested by the influx of population to this territory during the decade from 1850 to 1860, when the number of inhabitants increased from 6,077 to 172,023, or 2,730.7 per cent.

The population of Minnesota in 1900 is more than 288 times as large as that given for 1850, the first census in which the population of the territory, now comprising the state, was enumerated.

The total land surface of Minnesota is, approximately, 79,205 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 16.4; 1900, 22.1.

Table 2 shows the population of Minnesota by counties at each census from 1850 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.

Of the above named 447 incorporated places, there are 53 which have a population in 1900 of over 2,000; and of these 35 have less than 5,000; 11 have more than 5,000 and less than 10,000; and 6 have more than 10,000, namely, Minneapolis, with 202,718; St. Paul, with 163,065; Duluth, with 52,969; Winona, with 19,714; Stillwater, with 12,818; and Mankato, with 10,599 inhabitants.

For the 3 cities with a population in 1900 of more than 25,000, a summary is presented in table 6, showing the population of these cities at each census from 1850 to 1900, inclusive, so far as it is separately stated in the census reports at each decennial period, together with the increase by number and per cent during each of the ten-year periods.

¹ Includes Duluth village (population 2,645), set apart by act of legislature February 23, 1877, but which again became part of the city by the act of March 2, 1887.

St. Paul first appeared in the census returns in 1850, with only 1,112 inhabitants; Minneapolis in 1860, with 2,564; and Duluth in 1870, with 3,131. Subsequently the increase in population of all these cities, both in number and per cent, has been conspicuously rapid for each succeeding decade until the last, except that Duluth made only a nominal gain from 1870 to 1880. During the ten years from 1880 to 1890, however, the city made a phenomenal gain, increasing from 3,483 to 33,115, or 850.8 per cent. Within the same decade the population of Minneapolis increased from 46,887 to 164,738, or 251.4 per cent, and that of St. Paul from 41,473 to 138,156, or 221.1 per cent. As compared with this record the increase in the population of these cities during the last decade, as shown by the enumeration for 1900, is so small as to afford a noticeable contrast.
